

THE AGE OF PEACE

In the landscape of the future all things will be illuminated, from the illusion of separateness to the fact that the primary differences between individuals and kingdoms of nature lie in colors and intensities of light radiations, reflecting greater or lesser degrees of intelligence, wisdom and understanding.

The unobstructed Light of God will ignite the fires of mind and heart in human beings who aspire to uplift life on Earth. Ethics will no longer be flickering sparks of conscience, but flames of higher consciousness aligned with the course of Life.

The real meaning of Peace will be understood as the divine purpose behind the new age comes into focus. In the most general terms, this purpose is to inaugurate a reign of peace on Earth, as prophesied in countless teachings and scriptures. The era of peace will be established in the New Jerusalem, the City of Peace, where the resurrection of Spirit will take place.

There will still be karmic residues of human living to redeem, but the light of the soul will gradually irradiate the darkness and prepare Earth for the reign of peace—a peace that arises from enlightened love.

The word “peace” has been badly misused and misunderstood throughout human history—a history marked by conflict and war. When the powerful speak of peace, as in the present case of Syria, they are actually talking about the cessation of war, on their own terms. To achieve that end they attempt to suppress their enemies with deadly weapons, to establish an artificial truce by brute force.

Peace cannot arise from deadly force; the two are thoroughly incompatible. The soul longs for justice and righteousness. Its spark of divine light dies a little more with each betrayal. Without the hope of justice, human beings turn to retaliation and revenge. The road to lasting peace must pass through justice.

THE ENERGY WORLD
OF THE NEW EARTH

To enter into the energy field of the New Earth, consider that words are symbols. A word represents qualities and forms, processes and conditions. It is an emblem removed from the stream of living energies, serving as a kind of intermediary between form and formlessness.

Words are critical to humanity for communicating in a world of concrete form, but they are substitutes for energy transfers just as money is a substitute for material transactions. The key to understanding lies in the statement that spirit is matter at its highest vibrational frequency and matter is spirit at its lowest frequency.

The etheric plane is a dynamic, undulating world of swirling vortices of energy connected by moving streams of light within a unified field of consciousness. Etheric vision will reveal currents of energy pulsating in and through and between lives of all dimensions -- from the human and subhuman realms to the spiritual realm of Earth and beyond.

Energy flows by nature. It is never static even when contained by form but flows more freely through open channels of consciousness. You will experience this flow. Imagine the shift from reading words on a printed page to experiencing the energies and forces behind the words.

The light of the human soul has been expanding rapidly in recent years by force of circumstance. In the new era, soul awareness will break the bounds of time and space.

The goal of these writings is to help prepare the human psyche for “the leap” into a world where consciousness shapes the flow of energy into patterns that determine the nature of life for lesser or greater cycles. The etheric world is a boundless sea of energy in which human consciousness can expand unimpeded by the density of form.

To glimpse the future, visualize the light body of a human body intermingling with other bodies of light, entrained in streams of energy by laws of attraction, intention, and karmic necessity.

One of the main differences between the present and the future will be the fluidity of change, which offers unimaginable advantages for spiritual growth and evolution. In a landscape as fluid as water, whirling formations of light will reveal the nature of a person or circumstance, enhancing the field of insight and the ease of changing course.

Until etheric sight is well developed, the features and qualities of people and events will be seen as if from a distance, like figures approaching in a snowstorm. Life experience will largely be sensed vibrationally and consciousness will be recognized as the decisive factor.

Just as light is measured in frequencies of color and intensity, human qualities will be perceived as light frequencies. Light bodies will have features analogous to faces and torsos, but the vortices of light, color and sound they project will have far greater impact on the life stream around them.

There will no longer be a dense physical shield against the vibrational impact of emotion and thought. People of harmonious vibrations will find each other more readily than they now do; people of inharmonious vibrations will try to avoid each other as they now do.
