

CHANGES IN CLIMATE AND CONSCIOUSNESS

After millions of years, the Mother of physical life on Earth is running out of resources to sustain her offspring. People aware of this are in the throes of psychic distress over threats to crops, flowers, and trees, affecting the entire food chain, plus lumber, cotton, medicinal plants and other resources that have sustained humanity for eons.

Responsibility lies with the gap in human awareness and the shifting course of evolution. The old consciousness of waste, plunder, and devastation is waning as the new consciousness waxes. The distance grows daily between those who ravage the earth for personal gain and those who recognize the sacredness of life and try to preserve it. Diverging levels of consciousness are shaping different destinies. The portal to the Age of Light is open to all who gravitate toward it.

The changing climate of Earth can be seen from many different perspectives: geological, climatological, meteorological, biological as well as economic, political, and historical.

Plants and trees that once flourished in southern conditions of heat and moisture are now flourishing in northern regions. So great are temperature variations from the norm that they can no longer be ignored, but effects measured in spiritual terms remain unknown. The laws of cause and effect operate in subtler dimensions.

Climate change is only one aspect of the planetary transformation now underway. Behind the breakdown of biological systems, evolutionary purposes are being served. The will of God, focused in the planetary center of will and purpose (Shamballa), is working out through Masters of Wisdom dwelling in the planetary center of love, to prepare humanity to fulfill its destiny as the planetary center of Intelligence.

This destiny will unfold on the etheric plane -- a kind of meeting ground between spiritual and human kingdoms. Members of the Hierarchy will sacrifice to return there for the sake of Earth's evolution.

The flow of energy between the human and spiritual kingdoms has been intensified by climate changes. Human minds have reached 'upward' for guidance and higher Minds have responded, augmenting the inflowing cosmic energies and forces of the new era.

Those who invoke the light of the Hierarchy expand the flow of spiritual light into human awareness for the benefit of all who journey into the realm where the light of the soul will free itself from the trammels of form.

Measurements of departures from the norm in rainfall, temperatures, tornadoes and hurricanes, ignore the most significant measurement of planetary evolution: the rise in amperes of light emanating from the human soul.

The substance of light is the interface between denser and subtler planes, though only a portion of the light spectrum is captured by the physical eye. The light of spirit has a frequency beyond ordinary sight, which is why few human beings can perceive the light of great teachers, rishis, and saints. To the degree that a Soul is illumined, it emanates a light that changes its environment.

We are entering a time when the Life Force will express itself through higher gradients of light, both planetary and extra-planetary. It won't be long before the river of life departs from its previous course. This will come as no surprise to those aware of escalating reports of glaciers melting and rivers drying up. Without water, life in its present forms cannot exist. Such facts overwhelm the human mind, causing it to shut down in denial, out of fear that no alternatives exist. Let it be known that the real River of Life has a finer grade of substance.
