

THE NEW WORLD

The proximity of the end of the current world age has inspired this effort to present a picture of the immediate next steps for humanity. We face a daunting challenge in accomplishing this task as the contents will surely overwhelm the mental and emotional capacities of even the most advanced human beings.

However, the realization is dawning in many minds that the Earth as you have known it will not survive the forces of destruction that have been unleashed. The illusion of solid and unchanging form is gradually giving way to a higher wave of consciousness that is sweeping through the ranks of an evolving human race in preparation for the emergence of a new world.

It is known among esoteric students that this is a preparatory period but poorly understood what the preparation is actually for. We are preparing you for a vista so sweepingly new on a plane of experience so unfathomable to present humanity that only the awakened consciousness can take it in, for it is unprecedented in every sense of the word.

The conscious life stream of Earth is on the brink of entering a plane of subtler energies—of greater refinement and expanded awareness conducive to the emerging human Soul whose destiny is to irradiate the lives of all living beings while channeling the light and love of the spiritual Hierarchy into the world of human affairs.

In the new world solid beings and objects will not exist, but rather the subtler containers of energy and consciousness that in the past vitalized the dense physical forms.

Everything existing on the etheric plane will be animated by energies flowing through this plane where movement is generated by consciousness.

Time and space as currently understood will be obliterated and obviated in this new world . . . everything will proceed through the mechanisms of consciousness emanating from diverse levels and grades of planetary life, from plants and animals to Masters of Love and Wisdom. The laws of gravity measure the speed of mass moving through space. In a world without mass, different laws will apply.

By way of illustration, when a disciple is in contact with a Master it is unnecessary to 'go' anywhere, i.e., to change physical locations. What 'moves' is the focus of the mind, from the concrete world to the plane of Intuition where all Masters (with few exceptions) currently dwell—in consciousness.

A lifting of vibrations creates the resonance that brings one to the ‘place’ of connection. So it will be in the new world, where physical movement is no longer needed but only the visualization of what is sought and the appropriate shift of frequencies. By forming a thought-picture of the goal, one’s consciousness will ‘arrive’ at that person, place or event.

If this seems too far-fetched to imagine, consider the way that the internet allows you to bring up an image of anything you choose to search for. On a small screen you can now see before you virtually all places, persons and things on the surface of planet Earth. The facility of these machines and their growing familiarity have obscured the reality of their magic.

A close-up photograph of a person's eye, which is light brown and looking directly at the camera. The eye is highly detailed, showing the iris, pupil, and eyelashes. A reflection of a globe is visible in the pupil. The background is a soft, out-of-focus skin tone. In the top left corner, there is a small orange horizontal bar. Below it, a thin grey horizontal line separates the text from the image.

Of course, the use made of them determines whether the magic is white or black . . . but the point is that people now take for granted the fact that they can ‘be present’ at virtually any point on the globe without leaving their homes and can communicate in virtually any language without need of a human translator.

This system of planetary intercommunication has knit together the human race without its full realization of the implications. Much of humanity now lives in this virtual world. For all intents and purposes human communities have been transposed from geographical locations to 'locations' beyond time and space, by means of electronic impulses flowing through the ethers.

From there it should not require a great leap of the creative imagination to envision the etheric realm as a sea of energy where the machinery will be unnecessary. The principle of free choice has been established. A person who turns on a computer can 'go' any place in this world instantly simply by thinking the idea of that place or event.

One of the principles underlying the next period of evolutionary growth will be access to any attainable layer of existence by conscious choice and intention, and by resonance.
